

Looking for hair in all the wrong places?

It's on your back. On your knuckles. Under your arms. Other places we can't mention. It's everywhere but where you want it to be. On top of your head.

Yes, you suffer from MPB (Male Pattern Baldness to the uninitiated). And, frustratingly, it seems that with each passing year there is less and less hair growing out of your head. Meanwhile, places on your body that were seemingly barren of follicles are suddenly sprouting a luxuriant coat of fur. Your nose hairs reach your upper lip. Your ear hairs are thick enough to impair your hearing. And when did your eyebrows suddenly merge and become a single entity?

It's as if one day the hair on top of your head decided to pick up and move someplace shady for retirement. Which is pretty much the case and exactly where Hair Relocators comes in. Using our advanced surgical techniques, we can evict your hair from your back, ears, nose, and unibrow. We send them packing right back to the top of your shiny little noggin. Which won't be so shiny anymore.
